

Prague

Overview

Prague is understandably becoming one of Europe's most popular tourist destinations. The capital of the Czech Republic, Prague is situated in the heart of the country astride the Vltava (Moldau) River, and has a reputation as one of the most beautiful cities in Europe.

The city dates back hundreds of years and has a rich architectural heritage, ranging from Romanesque and Gothic to Renaissance and Baroque, which is remarkably well preserved having survived the Second World War fairly untouched. Unsurprisingly, the historic city centre, with its maze of cobbled streets, countless old churches and courtyards, was designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1992.

The city represents a unique collection of historical monuments. These are dominated by Prague Castle which towers above the city, a specimen of all artistic styles and movements. The city's historical centre is situated on both banks of the Vltava and consists of 6 formerly independent urban units which were unified in the 18th century. These include Stare Mesto (Old Town), Josefov (the preserved part of the former Jewish Town - today a part of the Old Town), Nove Mesto (New Town), Mala Strana (Lesser Town), Hradcany and Vysehrad. Naturally, most of the historical monuments, museums and galleries are concentrated right there.

In 2000 Prague was chosen as a European City of Culture and there is much to see and do. The city is best explored on foot and the Old Town is home to many of the most prominent attractions and best shopping locations, offering a fine selection of crafts and glass.

Wenceslas Square is the centre of modern Prague and the site of the demonstrations that led to the overthrow of Communism. Nearby is the Lucerna Passage, a pedestrian complex running under the Lucerna Palace, which is home to theatres and cafes.

Prague offers an abundance of hospitality. Restaurants offer both international and national cuisine in a range of prices including specialist fish, venison, vegetarian and kosher restaurants. There are wine-bars, beer halls, coffee lounges, internet cafés, confectioneries, tea-rooms and night-clubs with a variety of entertaining programmes.

Exploring the culture and style of country is often best done via its culinary offerings. Czech cuisine is highly appreciated by a majority of visitors. It features plenty of classical dishes, such as pork with sauerkraut and dumplings, sirloin of beef, tomato, dill, mushroom and other sauces with dumplings and beef, or schnitzel with a special potato salad, roasted pork knuckle, or perhaps yeast fruit dumplings strewn with cottage cheese and sugar. There are also many regional specialities including various potato and mushroom dishes as well as desserts, such as famous Bohemian and Moravian cakes.

In Prague a good dinner must be accompanied by the Czech national drink – beer. First among the world renowned beers is Pilsner, brewed in Plzen, the city in Western Bohemia. But many other excellent light and dark beers are also available. These include Budvar, Radegast, Gambrinus, Smíchovské, Kozel, Bernard, Krusovice and many other brands. The fine of delicious Czech and Moravian wines is excellent. Whilst it's traditional for men to visit picturesque beerhouses, and for women indulge in confectioneries with a rich selection of sweet desserts and fine coffees, both men and women enjoy the stylish selection of wine bars. The price of restaurants and bars differs depending on type, standard or location of the establishment.

Places to Visit

Prague Castle

Perhaps the city's most popular attraction, Prague Castle can be seen from practically anywhere in the city. It is the original seat of the Czech princes and kings and became a presidential residence in 1918. The castle's vast complex covers some 45 hectares and contains beautiful gardens, 3 courtyards and fortifications. The most famous attraction is the Gothic St Vitus Cathedral, the construction of which was begun in 1344 but not completed until 1929. Other buildings that are open to the public include the Old Royal Palace, St. Wenceslas' Chapel and St. Vojtech's Chapel.

Mala Strana

Perhaps the most picturesque district in Prague Mala Strana has many narrow streets that are well worth exploring. The area contains a number of Renaissance and Baroque churches and palaces such as the Vallenstein Palace, the Church of St. Nicholas and the Church of Our Lady Victorious.

The Charles Bridge

Connecting the Old Town to the Lesser Town, The Charles Bridge has become a traditional meeting place. Street performers can be found entertaining the crowds and a variety of stalls sell trinkets and handicrafts.

The Loreta Church

A short walk west of the district of Hradcany is The Loreta Church. It was built between 1626 - 1750, in the baroque style, and is a fascinating place to visit. The treasury on the first floor is home to some beautiful religious items including a valuable monstrance, decorated with thousands diamonds.

The Old Town Square

Largely given over to pedestrians, The Old Town Square is home to numerous restaurants and cafes that spill out onto the pavement during the summer. The square is surrounded the Old-Town Hall, which was constructed in 1338, and the Church of Our Lady of Tyn, with its two 70 meter towers.

The Old Jewish Quarter

Home to Europe's largest working synagogue. The Pinkas Synagogue, with its memorial to Holocaust victims, is also worth visiting as is the Spanish synagogue, which shows a plotted history on Jews since the emancipation.

Petrin Hill

The hill offers a wonderful panoramic view of the city and can be climbed on foot or by taking the funicular railway. You can also climb Petrin Tower, which is a 62m copy of the Eiffel Tower built for the Prague Exposition in 1891.

St Nicolas' Church (Chram Sv. Mikulase) on Malostranske namesti

Built in the period 1704-55, St Nicolas' Church is the most significant historical structure of the so-called Prague Baroque. Its tower offers a beautiful view over the Lesser Town, as well as a permanent exhibition called the Music of Prague Choirs, which commemorates an important musical tradition of the city and its churches.

Church of Our Lady of Victory - the Prague Bambino

An early baroque building from the year 1611, 1634 - 1669 Church of Our Lady of Victory was rebuilt by the Carmelite Order. The church is world-famous for the Prague Bambino - Infant Jesus wax figure, which was presented to the church by Polxena of Lobkowitz (1628).

Loreta

A Marian pilgrimage place with a copy of the Italian Santa Casa including the baroque Church of the Nativity of Our Lord. The site is encircled by a cloister and chapels and the spire houses a carillon which consists of 27 Loreta bells tuned to a Marian song, "We Greet You a Thousand Times" playing every hour from 09:00 to 18:00. The most valuable item of the liturgical treasury is the so-called Loreta Treasure.

Ctenice Castle

The Ctenice Castle is a unique monument in the belt of Gothic forts around Prague. First museum of carriages was opened here holding a permanent exhibition of ancient equipages, flies, stage-coaches and other historical carriages.

Ghosts

With all of Prague's Gothic forts and castles, the door is open for tales of ghosts, spectres and spirits. The television series "Most Haunted Live 2010 : Gothic Prague – Evil Within" visited the city in early 2010 to try to prove or dis-prove the occurrence of Prague's supernatural residents.

Getting Around

Buses and Trams

Prague has an extensive fleet of buses and trams that traverse the city and surrounding suburbs.

Operated by Dopravní podnik hlavního města Prahy, visitors can obtain detailed maps, directions and tickets from information offices located in the Airport and at Metro Stations. 24 hour, 3 day or 5 day tickets are available, and allow visitors unlimited travel on all public transport for the selected time period. Remember to validate your ticket before boarding.

Long distance buses arrive and depart from Florec Bus Station, with services to many regional destinations and major European cities. Tickets can be purchased at the terminal building or via contacting the bus companies (Student Agency and Megabus) directly.

Metro

Prague metro system with its comprehensive network and reliable service is a great way of getting around the city. Numerous lines connect 50 stations throughout the city centre, with trains running every few minutes. Operating from 5.00am through to 12.00am the metro system is by far the most convenient mode of transport, but be aware it can get busy during rush hour. Tickets can be bought from manned booths on the station concourse, or from automatic kiosks.

Trains

Most trains arrive and depart from Praha-hlavní nádraží train station, located three blocks northeast of Wenceslas Square. The station offers daily services to all of the Czech Republic's major cities and other European destinations such as Berlin, Budapest, and Vienna. Tickets for domestic and International trains can be purchased from any station.

Taxi

There are many official taxis that operate throughout Prague and can be hailed on the street, but it is often a better idea to pre-book by telephone or via a hotel. Be sure to only use licensed vehicles that display a phone number and company logo on the outside of the car. Predominantly operated by large companies, vehicles are usually fitted with meters – just make sure they are switched on before you set off. It is common for visitors to be overcharged, so ask at your hotel for a guide to what a fair price should be.
